Fines

May 3, 2019 (transcribed perfectly and accurately from Anne Roger's notes) Jean Levi was fined for being the only worthwhile employee of BB&T and therefore working too hard. Larry Sousa was fined for knowing our speaker. Condolences expressed to our speaker. Kenny Alderman had a sad dollar for also knowing Larry. Bill Knowles attempted to one up George Wilsey with a "true story". Jan Merrick identified with the woman in Bill's true story. Pat Hardin was fined for her attempt at standup comedy. Cicely Wulff had a happy dollar for Kaycee and her hard work at school and another happy dollar that Nikki has been offered a full-time position at SPC and won't have to work nights. David Morris couldn't think of anything original so put a dollar in for Nikki. Ed Morris played it safe and put a dollar in for the good season the Rays are having. Barbara Wagner and Ed Lillich were fined for being more interested in getting their calendars straight for Bookworks Reading instead of listening to the Finemaster. Ed Lillich shared that Henry TenBrink will not be down to Florida until October. We are all praying his wife health keeps improving. Don Knowles was fined for kissing up to the Finemaster. George Wilsey rambled on about an old picture of McArthur. We wondered if George was seeing ghosts. Phil Miller-Evans was fined for promising to make up any fines that Anne forgot to write down.

Speaker's Box

Lawrence Sousa—
Kiwanian of the Day

Joshua Wolfenden, Assistant Principal at Richard O. Jacobson Technical High School, was our speaker last Friday. His presentation was very thorough covering the past, present and the future of Richard O. Jacobson Technical High School. He related, in detail, information about each of the current six technical classes (Building and Construction, Commercial and Digital Arts, Electricity, Gaming & Simulation Programming, Nursing, Veterinary Science) as well as next year's Marine Mechanics class. He described what the students have done and are doing (Capstone Project Night, Open House, etc.), their positive attitude about the school and teachers, and their personal actions/statements about correct behavior at Jacobson Tech (e.g. no drugs, vaping, fighting, etc.). Our club members remained interested and awaited the opportunity to ask questions. Joshua took, and answered, about 15-17 questions from our members.
